Recent Success Story:

IHBS was working with a family that consisted of a single mom and her children. They were living in a domestic violence shelter, and had just moved to the area to escape the perpetrator. I connected them with community resources for clothing and food, primary care physicians, mental health services, and low-income housing. The children were enrolled into school, and connected to therapy through the school. The mom also gained full time at the children's school, and was connected to on-going therapy. They eventually got a furnished apartment through the shelters transitional housing program. The family is now established in their new community which is free from domestic violence and the family is thriving.
